NEARLY READY

FOR BIG GUNS

Major Winslow has received no information as to when the great guns will be shipped here, but as the war department has shown a deep interest in progressing the fortification works as rapidly as possible, it is likely that soon after the first of the year they may be on the way from the mainland.

Pearl Harbor Guns.

At Pearl Harbor, where two twelve-inch guns are to be erected in what will be known as Battery Seafright, named after the young lieutenant who lost his life in an aeroplane experiment at Fort Myer last year, Major Winslow has finished one emplacement and one gun is practically mounted. Both gun carriages are mounted and one gun is in process of being placed. Both will be ready by November 15. So far no magazines have been built and until such time as the gun is erected the gun will lie idle. No troops have been ordered here, as yet, to man this battery.

Barracks at De Russy.

It is unlikely that any buildings for troops will be erected at Port De Russy before July of next year. The duck ponds have yet to be filled in and on this new-made land the barracks and officers' quarters are to be erected. The Hawaiian Dredging Company, which has the contract to fill in the duck ponds, is just a little overdue in starting to work with its dredger. This dredger, the Pearl, which is to be employed in pumping in dredged material from the reefs in front of Port De Russy, is not quite ready, some of the parts having arrived late. It will be in readiness soon for active operations. Meanwhile, the company has laid its pipe lines and everything is in readiness ashore to connect up with the dredger.

No Word About Harbor.

As to the military works on the reef on the Waikiki side of Honolulu harbor channel, Major Winslow has no advice as to what is to be done. General Murray, chief of artillery, was here a short time ago and took away considerable data on the proposed works to be erected there, but nothing has resulted from their presentation to the war department at Washington. It is supposed that it will soon be decided to erect a battery on this reef.

EDUCATOR IS SHOT AS REVOLUTIONIST

(By Associated Press)

BARCELONA, October 14.—Francisco Ferrer was executed today. Ferrer, who was one of the most prominent educators of Spain, was charged with taking part in the recent revolutionary uprisings. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to death.

Brockford, Illinois, Shriner, who suggested a Shrine concourse here in 1910 when the Panama canal was opened. Mr. Cooper was authorized by the committee to recommend to Aloha Temple that such a concourse might be worthy of their attention, and the promotion committee would also do what it could to create interest in such a plan.

Fleet for Floral Parade.

It was also suggested on behalf of Mr. Trent that if the Pacific fleet could be here on Washington's Birthday it would be an additional attraction to the floral parade held on that day. The fleet's schedule calls for her arrival here on February 1 and to leave for San Francisco ten days later. The secretary was instructed to recommend to the chamber of commerce that the presence of the fleet here on that day would be important, and the chamber of commerce will be asked to take whatever steps may be necessary to ask that the fleet's itinerary be changed to meet the recommendation.

Mist's Pineapple Poster.

A handsome poster design from Harry Mist, formerly of Honolulu, now of Bremen, was shown. This is intended for Pineapple Day, August 22, 1910. The design is taken from the statue of Kamehameha, in the extended hand of which is shown a fine-looking pineapple. The whole idea was regarded as excellent.

Floral Parade Plans.

Considerable discussion was given over to the floral parade plans. So far no one has been elected as director, but several names have been suggested and these persons will be seen. The committee plans a more ambitious parade than has heretofore been held.

It is quite likely that the committee will not attempt to hold anything more than the floral parade, doing away with the idea of a street carnival. It is understood that the Elks are talking up a carnival, and if one is held it will be entirely under their own auspices.

MISTRIAL IN SUIT

FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

After an argument extending over a good part of yesterday's session the case of Leo Kee against E. O. White resulted in a mistrial, the jury being discharged at half past ten last night. The jury, at the last ballot, stood seven to five for the defendant. E. A. Doubtless appeared for the plaintiff, arguing the defendant of gross negligence. The suit was for $10,000, assessed by Leo Kee as damages for the killing of his son by White's automobile some time ago. The boy was riding on the handle bars of a bicycle when the collision took place between the auto and him.

The Rev. O. Kawahine offered the dedication prayer and the Rev. T. A. Waitiri preached the first sermon. The Rev. E. B. Turner welcomed the church into the church association, and the keys were presented by Hon. H. P. Baldwin. Special trains were run from Wailuku and Paia for the occasion.

MATERIAL FOR PEARL HARBOR EXTENSION

All Necessary Supplies for Rapid Transit Line Either Here or Coming.

All the material for the Pearl Harbor extension of the Rapid Transit system has been ordered and paid for, and the stuff is either here or on the way, according to a statement of President L. Tenney Peck of the Rapid Transit company. Just when active work is to be started is uncertain as there are certain legal matters connected with the extension that have yet to be adjusted.

A French general's wife, whose distinguishing ability was fascinated, demanded that an American, who was served with her husband in the case, be dismissed. "I am in your room and you are very drunk and impossible," said the general. "You are a bad husband." "I can't be exonerated by the court," said the general. "Then resign," said the general. "You must stay."

GRAND JURY INDICTS SIX

TRUE BILLS ARE RETURNED

Japanese Editor Among Those Who Must Stand Trial in U. S. Court.

Seven indictments were returned yesterday by the Federal grand jury as the results of its work for the first four days of the term. The indictments cover as many different offenses against the laws of the United States, and the punishment in case of conviction is liable to be severe in each case.

Toyofuki, the Japanese accused of having run an illicit distillery on Kauai, with the tacit consent of the Kauai county officials, who refused to prosecute him until after the law giving the counties the fines collected should have gone into effect, is one of those indicted.

Jakob J. Hiorth, who has for some months been spending his time in jail awaiting the action of the grand jury, is indicted on a charge of robbing Uncle Sam by embezzeling $681.52 from the Kekaha postoffice, in which he was a clerk at the time the crime was committed.

Yoshigoro Kimura, editor of the Hawaiian Japanese Daily Chronicle, of Honolulu, is among those charged by the grand jury with a serious offense against the laws of the United States. The indictment against him sets forth that he published in his newspaper and sent through the mails matter of an obscene character. Indictments against other Japanese editors charged with similar offenses are expected before the grand jury adjourns.

Two indictments are returned against Lono Bellin. One accuses him of stealing twenty-five cents' worth of gasoline from his employer, the United States government; the other of tampering and interfering with machinery used in the construction of the fortification works.

Two indictments are returned against High Sheriff Henry's hostelry for some months awaiting the action of the Federal inquisitors, is indicted on the charge of having impersonated a United States Deputy Marshal for the purpose of defrauding a woman named Teresa Marks out of three dollars. It is claimed that while Kim was in prison serving one of his sentences, he represented to the woman that he was an officer of the United States and could get her father out of jail if she would put up the coin to pay for it.

An indictment was returned against T. Fujimoto, charging him with having forged the signature and endorsement of Yoshei Iba to a money order for $95.06.

There is still a lot of work ahead of the grand jury, the cases which they have to investigate when they begin their sittings numbering about fifty.

WEBSTER NOW IS THE BANTAM CHAMPION

Defeats Monte Attell in Fast Ten-Round Bout at Los Angeles.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, October 13.—Danny Webster is bantamweight champion of the world. In a ten-round battle, fought last night at Naud Junction under the management of Uncle Tom McCarey, the redoubtable Monte Attell, the heretofore undefeated, went down to defeat before the determined onslaughts of the challenger.

Under the law it is impossible for the referee to render any decision, that duty devolving upon the sporting editors of the newspapers. But there was no difference of opinion. Monte Attell, the invincible, the hero of many a hard-fought ring battle was vanquished.

This fight gives Webster the undisputed title to the bantamweight championship, for Attell held his title without a shadow.

CHURCH DEDICATED AT SPRECKELSVILLE

New Congregation Is Admitted to Full Membership in the Maui Association.

Dedicated on Sunday last with appropriate services, the new Spreckelsville church at Spreckelsville, Maui, takes its place among the churches of that island. The new church has a congregation of thirty-one and was built and furnished at a cost of approximately $1000, being formally recognized by the Maui Church Association, October 10.

The Rev. O. Kawahine offered the dedication prayer and the Rev. T. A. Waitiri preached the first sermon. The Rev. E. B. Turner welcomed the church into the church association, and the keys were presented by Hon. H. P. Baldwin. Special trains were run from Wailuku and Paia for the occasion.

MILLER'S BONDSEN ARE FICKLE OR AFRAID

Twice Was He Bailed Out of Jail and Twice Sent Back Again.

J. H. Miller, the soiled ex-post carrier, who has found himself in sudden peril for breaking the law of Frank Hamillard, was "in again, out again" at the receiving station all day yesterday. Miller was surrendered by his bondsman, W. H. Crawford, yesterday morning. In the police court, his case was set forward and he was once more sent to secure another bondsman.
